I also ask "What should they do?" each time, so the children can interact, and they get the hang of it as each character's tree gets lopped off and put out for another. It is very important to me that when students cut and paste, they know that if they make a mistake, it is important to make the choice to problem solve instead of seeing their mistake as the trigger to shut down. Following an interactive read aloud of the picture book, MR. When Mr. Willowby's tree is too tall to fit in his house, he cuts off the top of it! A variety of people and animals then use the top, ultimately sharing joy around the forest. I'd never heard of it, but ordered it and fell in love. And finally, the animals demonstrate sheer joy at being together in the holiday season, as they celebrate finding the bits of the tree. The ceiling is no longer in jeopardy, the tree looks lovely, and Mr. W goes on his merry way. While reading: I usually say "Uh oh, what happened when they put up their tree?" as each character finds their tree is too big for their space. What do you think this story is about? Enjoy! (Below please find a list of reading comprehension questions and vocabulary words. If you chop off the bottom or trunk instead, would others be able to share in the tree as well? A reader emailed me a few weeks ago and said it was her husband's favorite book growing up. But that's just where the story and the fun begins. Mr. Willowby's Christmas Tree by Robert Barry, (purchase a copy on Amazon or find at your local library) is quite possibly my all-time favorite Christmas book to read to my pre-k kiddos. What is a "character" in a story? What are other ways we can reduce, reuse and recycle at Christmas? In my directions, there is a subtle reminderSubjects: December 11, 2011 by Jolanthe These printables were created to use with the book Mr. Willowby's Christmas Tree by Robert Barry. That's the best part of the story in my opinion, because it truly captures the holiday spirit of being with the ones you love. Can you figure out what is going on in the picture? Mr. Willowby has a giant tree trucked in, but oops, he failed to pre-measure and lo and behold, that big boy is scraping his 19-ft parlor ceiling. Thank you!) Fair warning, though, you may have to explain some high-brow terms like "parlor" and "butler," to your kiddos, but Mr. W's bougie environs notwithstanding, this book rules. Anyway...back to our story. The treetop wends its way through six families after it leaves Mr. Willowby, so the book does get a little long. First Baxter takes it to sweet Miss Adelaide, the aforementioned upstairs maid, but it proves to be too big, so she lops off the top and tosses it out. Timm, where, yes, they find it's just a wee bit too big. Gradually the tree top works its way to the home of the tiny mice who live in Mr. Willowby's parlor (how is it Baxter hasn't found them yet?), and it ends with everyone getting to enjoy a bit of Mr. W's tree. Would you chop off the top too? Don't Miss These Either! Holiday Village by Cupcake Cuties and Woodland Creatures by Lily Bimble purchased from My Graphico. But it's a heart-warming story, and it does encourage sharing, even though no one in the story is aware they are actually sharing (except Baxter, of course. What's another way to make the tree smaller? After reading: How would you have fixed Mr. Willowby's Christmas tree? It's chock-full of flowery, descriptive vocabulary words (glistening! splendid! magnificent! mincemeat!) and jaunty rhyming prose. The top is chopped off and tossed out, and that's when the animals get involved. That must be why he let those mice slay, he's a softie at heart.) We love this story for older 3s, 4s & 5s! The subtle theme of reducing, reusing and recycling also gets a nod here — ahead of its time since the story was originally written in the mid-20th century. This list is not exhaustive, and it may spark additional questions from your kiddos. $5.00 $0.00 / This MR. It's free to download below. Gardener Timm ambles by the trashcan, picks up the discarded treetop and takes it home to Mrs. Why do you think he's making this face? What's a way you like to share at the holidays? So, like a man who knows he better act fast or he's going to find himself in a tux atop a Little Giant ladder scraping off pine sap and applying a coat of touch-up paint, Baxter the Butler lops off the top of the tree.
